In the kitchen Maria and Cherrie’s voices filled the room, mixing the pleasant sound of the dishes with the sound of the tablecloth being cleaned. The solution to the problem of the social reality we live in, with our internal validations, our economic, and our vision. What matters to us is whether our internal validations as writers, what type of writing is important to us to get to the writing. No topic is too trivial. The problem is to focus, to concentrate. The body distracts, savages the pleasure with the sounds of the tablecloth, being cleaned. The solution to the problem is to anchor the body to a coffee or some other ritual. And who has time or energy to write after nurturing husband and children. Children often an outside job? The problems seem insurmountable once we make up our mind to make time for the writing.

Forget the room of one’s own—write in the kitchen, lock yourself up in the bathroom. Write on the bus or the welfare line, lock yourself up in the kitchen. No long stretches between sleeping or waking. I write while sitting on the floor or clothes listen to the words on a typewriter. Writing is to relieve, to express, to comprehend, to think, the writing when I’m almost asleep. Writing is liable to jump up and write.

Distractions all—that I spring to get away from the writing when I’m almost asleep. Writing is liable to jump up and write.
This course is designed for students interested in queer and LGBT (lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans*) culture who have little background in its academic study. Alongside theoretical, political, and academic texts, we watch movies, analyze poetry, consider television, music videos, and blogs.

The course introduces students to the analysis of culture, and American queer culture in particular, from a queer perspective. Towards that end, we consider the emergence of the concept of “queer” and examine critiques of this concept from various positionalities. We then turn to the analysis of multiple cultural objects. Here, we attend to how queer cultural production comes out of poetry and film, tracing the relationships between sexual politics, capitalism, racism, settler colonialism, and neoliberalism. In each critique, we examine poetry and film that builds queer and trans* futures.

The following are the key course goals:

1. Students are able to contextualize and analyze the materials or topics covered, historically, politically, culturally.

2. Students can appreciate the value and challenge of difference and disagreement.

3. Students are acquainted with a range of texts useful to understanding the course topic and to doing future work in this area.

4. Students develop flexible and creative strategies for doing reflective analytical composition.

COURSE BOOKS AND FILMS

You will select ONE of the below books. You will read this book throughout the quarter and respond in your Book Club. PLEASE NOTE: I have a strong preference for you to order from Open Books. Please ensure, either way, you will have the book in hand by Week 4.

ESSAYS, SHORT VIDEOS, PODCASTS, AND POEMS:
Throughout the quarter, you will read critical essays, watch short explanation or interview videos on YouTube, listen to select podcast episodes, and read poems from selected books. These will be available on Canvas as free downloadable .pdfs OR for free through the UW library. It is your responsibility to check Canvas each week for these materials. I will adjust what is assigned each week based on our course progress.
ASSIGNMENTS

30%: DISCUSSION BOARDS

What: Much of our class participation will take place through online discussions. I will post specific videos and podcasts with prompts for online responses.

Prompts/Submission Location: CANVAS discussion boards.
Assessment: Complete/Incomplete. Option to revise if Incomplete.

30% BOOK CLUB:

What: You will be placed in Book Clubs based on your chosen poetry book. You will post 1-2+ weekly suggested prompts in the Prompts Discussion Board 1 that you would give the class about the course readings so far in relationship to your book (meet Weeks 2 - 3 and Weeks 6 - 7 in class with your Book Club to do this). Week 3, I will select prompts for class; we will vote on which one(s) to respond to in a short online magazine, podcast, YouTube, critical essay, or other mode. Then, the class will generate a rubric (this is called Contract Grading). Keep in mind your audience is one another. Your book club will post your response Week 5 in the Book Club Week 5 Discussion Board. We will review these in our Book Club breakout rooms during class Week 6; I will meet with each breakout room, finalizing assessment and discussing options for the second Book Club response. We will repeat this process Weeks 7 - 10; Weeks 6 - 7 post in Prompts Discussion Board 2, Week 7 vote on prompts/generate rubric, Week 10 post responses in the Book Club Week 10 Discussion Board and meet in breakout rooms for assessment. If you would like to use a medium or mode other than those listed above, you can propose it to me over email or in my office hours by Weeks 3 and Week 7. Confused on deadlines? See the Syllabus Course Calendar, Syllabus Assignments Checklist, and Canvas.

Prompts/Submission Location: CANVAS discussion boards & In-Class.
Assessment: Course-Generated Rubric & Book Club Conferences.
ASSIGNMENTS (CON’T.)

20% FINAL PROJECT:
What: You will collect 2 or more assignments you feel excited about from the quarter, revise them, and present them in your preferred online format (website, Canvas ePortfolio, .pdf, etc.) with an informal 2-4 pg. or 4-6 minute audio or audiovisual reflection. Workshop these Week 10.

Prompt Located: Class-generated Week 4, then in Canvas FILES.
Submission Location: Class Workshop Week 10 (have a draft done). CANVAS Assignment Portal Week 11 PLUS in-class showcase of it.
Assessment: Class-generated rubric Week 4.

20% REFLECTION PIECES:
What: You will do varied, small assignments -- writing warm-ups, playlists, etc. Combine these into 1 .pdf file by Week 11.

Prompts: In-Class.
Submission Location: Combine and submit on Canvas Week 11.
Assessment: Complete/Incomplete.

10% EXTRA CREDIT:
What/Prompt: Identify the two texts on the front of the syllabus. If you guess accurately the authors and/or books, I will send you the full texts as .pdf. Write a 2-4 page double-spaced paper or record a 4 - 8 minute audio file wherein you compare and contrast the arguments from the texts and socio-political positions of the authors. Tone and editing can be informal.

Submission Location: Canvas Assignment Portal
Assessment: Complete/Incomplete.
This course will be occasionally be recorded for accessibility purposes. The recording will capture the presenter’s audio, video and computer screen. Student audio and video will be recorded if they share their computer audio and video during the recorded session. The recordings will only be accessible to students enrolled in the course to review materials. These recordings will not be shared with or accessible to the public. The University and Zoom have FERPA-compliant agreements in place to protect your security and privacy.

FERPA, PRIVACY, & RECORDING

You are responsible for knowing what constitutes a violation of the UW Student Code and are responsible for any violations, whether intentional or not. Plagiarism ranges from outright copying to closely paraphrasing without citation. I recommend Owl Purdue for reviewing citation practices. We report all cases of academic misconduct and plagiarism according to university policy.

STUDENT ABSENCES FOR REASONS OF FAITH

Washington state law requires that UW develop a policy for accommodation of student absences or significant hardship due to reasons of faith or conscience, or for organized religious activities. If relevant to you, review UW’s policy and the Religious Accommodations Request form (text is hyperlinked to form).
This course is explicitly political in its conduct and aims to create an ethical, caring, reciprocal environment for safe learning about our roles in a changing socio-political world using the tools of literary production and analysis. To that end: recognizing and valuing diversity is essential to the learning goals of this course and the critical thinking endeavor at the heart of university education. Respect for difference includes and is not limited to age, cultural background, ability, ethnicity, family status, gender presentation, immigration status, national origin, race, religion, political belief, sex, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, and veteran status. Your participation will require careful and ethical engagement with people and ideas reflective of diversity, including those not in alignment with your personal beliefs and values. While you might be new to forms of respect, such as accurate pronouns, you are required to strive for learning how to best care for each other, including using accurate pronouns. It is expected to mess up: so, this is not a demand for perfection. Rather, in this course, when you slip up or have it pointed out, please do apologize and course correct to make the class as safe as possible for everyone.

STUDENT ABSENCES FOR EASONS OF FAITH
If you have any concerns about the course or your instructor, please see the instructor about these concerns as soon as possible. If you are not comfortable talking with the instructor or not satisfied with the response that you receive, you may contact the Department Chair, Anis Bawarshi.
COURSE CALENDAR

| 10/05 | Go over syllabus. Ice breakers. Book Clubs. | We polled the class on the format during this online learning environment. Then, we went over the “bones” of the syllabus. Finally, we had a chance to begin the homework due Monday next week:
1. Create a playlist (any length) that also functions as your “autobiography.” Spotify if possible, please. Link to this at the end of your Glossary Reflection (see next two assignments).
2. Write a 2 page double spaced or shorter reflection on at least one term from the LGBTQIA+ Glossary (Links to an external site.) and its relationship to how you. Then, write out which terms still confuse you (and, what you think they mean and where you are uncertain what they mean).
Reminder: paste a URL to your playlist, preferably Spotify, at the end of your reflection. |
