Course Description

A study of the person and work of Christ, predestination, conversion, justification, sanctification, and the work of the Holy Spirit; perseverance; the nature and mission of the church; sacraments; eschatology.

The overarching theme of TH502 is the reconciling work of the Son, in the power of the Holy Spirit, resulting in the formation of the church as a historical-eschatological reality spanning creation and eschaton. While TH501 discussed the doctrine of the Trinity and then began to lay the bases of a Christian anthropology (creation, image of God, fall), TH502 focuses on the Trinitarian restoration of the fallen creation, leading up to its eschatological consummation.

Everything hangs on two principles. First, we need a proper understanding of Christology. This course will be devoting four weeks to this topic, since the current Christological discussion requires some familiarity with the early development of the doctrine.

Second, we also need a robustly Trinitarian Pneumatology, including an understanding of what may be called a Christological-Pneumatological synthesis. Having a proper understanding of this synthesis is a necessary condition of a balanced soteriology, ecclesiology, and finally eschatology. These topics are to be grounded in Christology and Pneumatology.

Methodologically, this course will have a strong emphasis on engaging theology in a comparative fashion. We can only cherish our own traditions once we understand them to be in conversation with other major Christian traditions. Consequently, particular attention will be paid to the way in which Catholics and Eastern-Orthodox believers have shaped their own doctrinal traditions. At the conclusion of this course you will both appreciate more deeply your own tradition, as well as gain a sense of the richness and diversity of Christianity in general.

Technology

Computer and Internet Connection

You will need regular access to a computer with high-speed internet and capable of downloading files and streaming multimedia presentations.

Software

You will need Microsoft Word or a comparable word processor installed on your computer.

Required Activities

To demonstrate achievement of course objectives, you will participate in various required activities. You will find detailed descriptions of these activities on your course site, but an overview of these requirements is given below:

Read Required Texts

You should start each week by reading from the required textbooks, as listed. The schedule for this reading is listed in the Modules section of your course site. Keep in mind that the reading required for this course is heavy and will require a substantial and disciplined commitment on your part. Falling behind in your reading based on our current schedule will be hard to recover from.

Watch Lectures

After completing your reading, you will then view the narrated presentations (lectures). Most of the lectures will not last more than an hour, although there will be a few exceptions. While they do cover some of the material from the required textbooks, they are meant to complete and not simply to repeat the information you gathered there.

Contribute to Discussions

The Discussion assignments will encourage you to apply some heady theological material to practical problems of ministry. Discussion posts should be not more than 600 words, and should represent a substantial argument in response to the forum prompts, adequately pulling from and referencing lectures, readings, Scripture, and other related sources.

Quizzes

Three objective (multiple choice) quizzes distributed throughout the term are the only objective testing component in this course. You will be tested on the basis of specified entries in Elwell's Evangelical Dictionary of Theology, as well as the narrated presentations.

Statement of Faith Paper in four parts

You will write a comprehensive statement of faith, covering all the material that you interacted with in TH501 and TH502. This will be a four-part project, spread over the duration of this class. Each part of your statement of faith will be about 6 pages long and explain classical and contemporary theological positions on given topics and the biblical basis for these doctrines, as well as your own perspectives.

Sequence of Activities

Achievement of the course objectives will be measured through a variety of assignments and activities as described below. The following chart indicates how various course elements proportionately relate to the overall course grade. The successful completion of these activities will require each student to spend approximately 135 hours devoted to coursework, both in class and out of class. Descriptions of the assignments are listed below:

Lesson	Pages of Reading	Videos to watch*	Discussions	Quizzes	Papers
1	55	2	Discussion 1
