

Viewing Exams/Quizzes with Proctorio

[Back to
Fac. Toolbox](#)

The first time you use Proctorio you will go through Proctorio's integrated lesson and steps. This will walk you through the basics of Proctorio.

Note: Proctorio will only show you their webcam as well as the suspicion Level. To view their answers you will still need to use SpeedGrader.

There are a lot of options with Proctorio. We will cover a brief description of each.

1. You will begin by seeing a list of all the student who submitted the exam. They will be ranked by their Suspicion Level.

2. Under Proctorio Settings you can adjust settings even after your class has taken the Quiz/Exam.

- Changing settings from Lenient to Moderate will increase your students Suspicion Level. Likewise decreasing from Moderate to Lenient will reduce your students Suspicion Level.

3. You can also Customize your Settings by Exam/Quiz. Scroll down to see all of the available options. Drag the bar into the red to increase the severity of the act.

4. You can also have Proctorio search for Abnormalities. For example Test Takers who Copy & Paste. Click on each option to get a description of each item.

5. Once you are done setting up your parameters go back into the Proctorio Gradebook.

6. Click into a student's attempt to watch their video and see what items they were flagged for.

7. Incident descriptions will be on the right. You can scroll through this to see what was possibly flagged.

8. You can also watch the video in real time, view frame by frame, or watch in an accelerated speed.

9. When looking at the Bar items in Red are Suspicious, Yellow is Questionable, and Green is Good.

The screenshot displays the Proctorio interface. At the top, a 'Suspicion Level' summary shows 18% (green) and 54% (yellow). Below this are two tabs: 'Proctorio Gradebook' and 'Proctorio Settings'. The 'Proctorio Settings' tab is active, showing two main settings: 'Lenient' (with a description: 'Multiple behavior violations are required to trigger suspicion') and 'Moderate' (with a description: 'Some behavior violations will trigger high suspicion levels'). Below these are two sliders: 'Head and Eye Movement' and 'Multi-Face'. Further down are three icons representing 'Copy & Paste', 'Exam Collusion', and 'Navigating Away'. At the bottom, there are two video player windows. The left one shows a student's webcam feed with a play button and a progress bar. The right one shows an 'Incident' list with entries: 'Test taker was looking away', 'Test taker navigated away from', and 'Test taker was looking away'. Below the video players are two bar charts showing the distribution of suspicion levels over time, with a red triangle indicating a specific point in time.
